Line Material Co. Workers Contribute $2,200 To Chest

THE EMPLOYEES and management of Line Material Industries have once again demonstrated their annual "Good Neighbor" policy for charity.

The "Good Neighbor" plan works this way. The company provides four hours overtime work for each participating employee. Wages for this work go into the Line Material Employees Charity Fund. An employee committee then divides this money between Community Chest agencies and other charities.

This year 212 out of 236 employees, or 89 per cent, worked for "Good Neighbor Day" and their contributions amounted to $2,057 for the Charity Fund.

The employees committee voted to donate $2,200 of this money to this year's Community Chest drive.

In addition to this, the company donates one day's profit to charity. The Community Chest's share this year will amount to approximately $2,000 more.

Four Talks To Be Given At Service

SABBATH evening services for youth will be held at the Seventh-day Adventist school auditorium today beginning at 7:45 p.m.

Mrs. Lewis Heller, associate youth leader, will be in charge, assisted by Elaine Oney, secretary and Thomas Foulkes, Jr., song leader.

Mrs. Heller said tonight's service has been designed "to impress our youth that the Morning Watch (personal devotion) is reaching up and coming in touch with God through fellowship and communion."

Scripture reading will be St. Matthew 7:7-8 "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you: For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened."

Four talks or discussions will be presented, namely: "The Morning Watch," Dr. L. D. Warren; "Time to Refuel," Mrs. Leslie Drake; "Keep a Date With God," Mrs. Thomas Foulkes; and "The Family Altar," Charles Loney.

The service will be closed with the singing of "The Lord's Prayer" by Thomas Foulkes, Sr.

Employment Rises Despite Steel Strike

STEEL shortage as a result of the national steel strike hasn't yet shoved its foot very far into the door of the Pocono area employment picture, for 32 area manufacturing employers show a 13 percent increase in employment in the month of September, as compared with the same month in 1958.

There has also been a sharp decline in the number of persons in the Pocono area to sign up for unemployment insurance and job availability.

The manufacturers indicate an employment rise of 50 persons between July 1 and Sept. 15, with metal industries accounting for most of the gains. The steel firms report that they have sufficient steel to carry them until mid-December or longer.

Outside Residents
Although the pace of the resort employment is down to a crawl, many of the workers laid off immediately after Labor Day were from areas outside of the Poconos.

If the number of persons filing claims for unemployment insurance can be accepted as a strong index for a trend, the results are favorable, for only 1,414 claims were filed during September. There were 3,921 claims filed September, 1958.

The local employment office has received only 799 applicants for jobs, 313 of which were female, which shows a decline of 364 from last September.

The bureau reports that shortages of workers exist for sewing machine operators, commission sales jobs, a woodworking foreman and "live-in" applicants for resorts.

Five Youths Take Candy From Group Of Youngsters

FIVE teenagers were arrested by Stroudsburg police late Wednesday while taking candy and other articles from a group of children who had been trick or treating in the N. Eighth St. neighborhood.

Two of the five were identified by Police Chief John B. Tretheway as James J. Megrosky and Richard J. Luciano, both 19, of Tannersville. The other three are juveniles—15, 16 and 17 years old. All were released for further action.

Megrosky and Luciano will have hearings this afternoon before Peace Justice John C. F. Foelker. The three juveniles will face court action.

Tretheway said the five accosted a group of youngsters ranging in age from six to 11. When one of the group objected, Tretheway said, one of the five held the victim with one arm around her neck while one of the others took her candy.

The police chief said the five, traveling in an automobile, had accosted several groups of Halloweeners before police caught up to them.

Valuable 'Shift' Penny Found By Local Pastor

A FINE specimen of the rare 1955 "shift" Lincoln cent was recently discovered by Rev. William F. Wunder of East Stroudsburg while visiting in Oquossoc, Maine.

The variety of Lincoln penny was first discovered in New England several years ago and since then a tremendous demand has been made for this numismatic freak.

No one knows exactly how many copies of the coin exist but evidently several rolls of them were widely distributed throughout New England before they were first discovered.

Only in existence for four years they are already on equal par in value with the extremely rare 1909-SVDB Lincoln cent.

These "shift pennies" can easily be identified since there is a double impression of the date (1955) and the words "Liberty" and "In God We Trust" on the face of the coin. The conjecture is that the die made a "double-strike" on the group of Lincoln cents which are now greatly in demand.

One coin dealer said the rare penny is valued at from $50 to $75, depending on condition.

Little Significance

Except for increasing pressures on the industry for settlement of the 107-day-old steel strike, most observers see little real significance in the agreement reached between Kaiser Steel Corp. and the United Steelworkers.

The agreement cracked the solid front which the "Big 12" steel companies have maintained since the strike began. But the terms are regarded as "too inflationary" by the remaining 11 firms and there is no indication they will set the pattern for a final settlement.

In the industry, Kaiser Steel is a pygmy compared to United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic and others. It is ninth largest, producing only two percent of the nation's steel. It is a west coast company and serves a limited western market.

Its facilities are new and extensively automated. Hence, it does not have to contend with the complicated work rules which older, bigger steel firms say block their efforts to modernize and gain efficiency.

The Kaisers, both father and son, have a record of harmonious dealings with labor in their many undertakings. Their relations with the big steel producers, on the other hand, have been less than cordial. Especially was this true in World War Two when the Kaisers were building ships on the west coast.

The surprising aspect, therefore, is not so much that Kaiser Steel has signed a separate arrangement with the steel union. It is that Kaiser remained for so long a part of steel's united front.

Opinions Of Other Editors

The Price Of Monopoly

Except in time of war, most enterprises—from the maker of automobiles to the vendor of candy bars—are free to ask whatever price they like for their products. The customers are then free to buy the products, or not buy them, as they choose.

But there are some companies denied this freedom. The public has decided (whether wisely or not) that in certain fields it will grant the privilege of monopoly. But the public knows from bitter experience that a monopoly which is allowed the same freedoms of competitive enterprises, especially when that monopoly is over a vital economic function, will soon have the public at its mercy. So the public exacts its own price for the privilege of monopoly.

Monopoly is tolerated only under two conditions. First, the monopolist is not permitted to withdraw services; the electric company and the telephone company are not free to shut up shop. Secondly, the monopolist cannot bargain in the market place; the remuneration of monopolies are fixed by public authority. In short, to keep its privilege a monopoly must do as it is told.

For a long time now the labor unions seemed to enjoy extra-privileged status. In many industries they have complete monopoly power over all of the labor in that industry. Meanwhile, because they enjoy an exemption from the price of monopoly, they are a privileged group.

But that privilege, we suggest, will prove more seeming than real. For by exercising that privilege, as the labor unions are doing, that privilege is certain to be destroyed. The real question, which now underlies all of the maneuvers in the steel strike, is how that privilege will be resolved by the nation. Whether the monopoly power of labor will itself be restrained. Or whether remaining a monopoly, labor will be required to pay the inevitable price—to do what it is told by public authority.

Consider this steel strike. The pretense is that this is a case of a vendor and a buyer, a labor union and an employer, bargaining over a price, the price of labor, in the ordinary way. There is much talk about collective bargaining process, about how the two parties ought to settle things themselves, and much blaming of both parties because the bargaining process has broken down.

But a true bargaining situation requires, by definition, that both parties have the right to say "no" if they are dissatisfied with the terms, and to keep on saying "no." This is the situation that prevails when you bargain over a house or a car, because the market for these is competitive and there are other sellers among whom you may choose.

But here the situation is otherwise. It is as if you had to try to bargain with the utility company. Having a monopoly, the electric company could demand what it would. Your choice would be to accept its price or go lightless and helpless, to be reduced to primitive living. Against a monopolist utility you would have nothing to bargain with.

Now what has happened here is that for the first time the steel companies have tried to apply the bargaining principle of saying "no." But they really have nothing to bargain with; they hire on the Steelworkers' terms or they hire no one. The bargaining, then, can consist only of a struggle of economic strength; of each party saying "no" until one of them weakens to the point it must say "yes" to the other. And in this the union has the vital advantage that there are many companies, any one of which might weaken and there is only one steel union.

Yet precisely because there is a single union with this monopoly power over the whole of a vital industry, a "no" at the private bargaining table is a major public concern. The public may be patient; it will not be supine. And what the public cannot tolerate, its Government will not allow. One President in anger may try to seize an industry or draft strikers into the Army; another uses the slower processes of the law. But both reflect a deep awareness of the whole nation that, in the end, untrammelled monopoly power in private hands cannot be borne.

We do not know by what means the nation will finally resolve this question of union monopoly power. It would be wiser, we think, to end the monopoly, as it has done for industry, through the anti-trust laws, and thus retain for those who labor their right to bargain without let or hindrance on the terms of their employment.

But if it is not resolved in this way, then it will be in another. Injunctions, compulsory arbitration, Federal wage boards—use what name you will, the people will demand the substitute of Government coercion for the processes of free bargaining that are destroyed by the existence of union monopoly.

For our part, we think it will be a sad day of all those who labor when their wages and hours and working conditions are set by the Government, when the power of Government waxes. But that, we are certain, will once again deny them, as it must, even the right not to be the price that must be paid for monopoly.

The Pennsylvania Story

Election Fuss

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Pennsylvania on Tuesday goes into its general election with as little interest as has been evidenced in an election in many a year. Basic reason of course lies in the fact that Tuesday will be strictly local affairs with the exception of the statewide contests for seats on the State Superior Court and State Supreme Court, plus three constitutional amendments.

Additional reason for the exceptional "quiet" of the off-year balloting Tuesday: For once an administration here in Harrisburg has neglected to raise any unusual fuss and bother tending to stir voter interest from a party standpoint.

Of perhaps more than passing interest is the fact that statewide leaders of both parties have been nominally content to save their efforts and strain for next year's presidential run-off and let the upcoming show next week run its own course.

Ordinarily heavily populated Capitol Hill today begins to assume the heavy atmosphere of a deserted town as state payrollers—those whose residence is 100 miles or more away—head for home precincts and a long week end. Those unfortunate enough to live within the 100-mile impact area will have a holiday Tuesday but—in theory—will be on hand at their offices Monday.

Legislative Logbook—Pennsylvania's 1959 Legislature, currently in recess until Nov. 9 (in deference to Tuesday's election is fast coming up with some interesting statistics—if not legislation.

Item. It is already the third longest, exceeded only by the 17-month 1955-56 session and the 1951 session which ran to December 22 of that year.

Item. More bills have been introduced in this session—3667—than ever before. . . 1231 have turned up in the Senate and 2436 in the House of Representatives.

Item. Number of bills vetoed so far by the Governor round out to the tremendous figure of—one. . . Should this hold— which is doubtful—it would rank with only one other session since 1875, the special session of 1906, when only a single veto was laid on the table.

However since 1875 there have been five sessions in which no gubernatorial vetoes were recorded. . . The boom year in vetoes occurred in 1931 when former Gov. Gifford Pinchot inked a whopping 256 vetoes.

Traffic-Snarl City—It is a paradox perhaps but Pennsylvania's Capital City of Harrisburg—the fountainhead, the focal point and planning center for highway design for the rest of the state—unquestionably should be dubbed the "traffic snarl city."

Oftimes referred to by city fathers lovingly as "Pennsylvania's transportation hub" for air, rail and highways (which it is), it actually is a hub with toothpick spokes.

For example, a few years ago the state built a modern four-lane multi-million dollar bridge across the Susquehanna River leading into Harrisburg and appropriately, named it after a local senator. . . Both Highways Department and bridge design engineers wanted a "high-level" thoroughfare at the Harrisburg end to carry through traffic above streets.

By a fluke in the law—it can be called little other than that—third class cities such as Harrisburg can veto high-level plans of the state.

Potential city fathers did just that and today Pennsylvania's Capital City is in the ignominious position of having an ultra-modern bridge pouring traffic into a horse-and-buggy city loaded with low-level traffic light jam-up points—with traffic omelets backed up two miles waiting to cross the bridge and enter the "traffic snarl city."

Unquestionably it is a tribute to "farsighted" Pennsylvania.

Possible Vice Presidents

Apparently the walking encyclopedia who appeared on the T.V. quiz shows signed a contract.

These were entertainment contracts. They were not appearing as a encyclopedia but as entertainers; they were showmen, pitchmen for advertising. For that they got paid. No one appeared without some form of compensation.

Their defense that they did not cheat is that they put on a good show and that that is what they were hired to do. Their amended confessions to New York District Attorney Frank Hogan, if they are within these margins, may have legal substantiation, but public opinion will regard the entire business as cheating.

Dr. Frank Stanton of CBS shows more sense than others involved in this exhibition of greed; he admits the guilt of all participants, including his company's, changes the policy and denounces the practice.

Others who have failed to follow his example, must explain to the public how they can justify cheating.

What seems to be missed in all the discussions about the cheating T.V. shows are two facts:

1. The air waves are not owned by the networks or the radio stations. They are owned by the people of the United States and are operated under license. The responsibility then is as much the FCC's and the FTC's to see that the American people are not swindled as anyone else's;

2. The quiz shows and similar entertainment are generally presented to the public as unrehearsed. That in radio is possible; in television it is difficult if not impossible. Edward R. Murrow who used to manage the rather dull "Person to Person" show, says of this:

"The producers must know who is going where and when and for how long. They must know whether the individual will require 20 seconds or two minutes to answer a question. The alternative to a degree of rehearsal would be chaos."

If a show has been rehearsed it is not unrehearsed. Perhaps that is the "Person to Person" show was so stilted, but most of the quiz shows were not dull. They seemed to be genuinely unrehearsed. They seemed to be spontaneous.

The T.V. quizzes will die now and most of the give-away programs will die. What is to take their places? Shall we have more Westerns and more murders? What is left to show?

This seems to be a frightful dilemma for television which is required by its very nature to produce too many shows each day. After all, most Westerns have by now come to the same end; the hero generally has to murder the villain and the same scenery has become tiresome.

Now that we have become accustomed to the heroes and know them intimately, the element of surprise is lost.

The "private eye" yarns get tougher each day. The thrill departs after the racketeer is shot; it is not necessary to pour the remaining bullets in to him. Besides, they are bad for the young who nowadays do not go to bed at 9 p.m. when wickedness apparently becomes permissible on T.V.

The use of TV needs to be brought out anew. The tendency of all media of expression in this country is to find a formula that pays off and to stay with it until it no longer pays off. Probably what happened with the cheating T.V. quiz shows is that the formula was growing desperately difficult to keep going; so they made it an easier instrument by a bit of innocent cheating. But in the end, crime does not pay, because somebody tells.

I used to enjoy quiz shows. They were a wonderful reminder that nobody knows much really and that a bit of humility helps.

But the cheating was in some cases quite obvious, particularly when questions which could correctly be answered in different ways, had to be answered only one way. Why was that? We used to argue about such goings-on in this family and would consult various reference books. Maybe we learned something.

Confessing secretly to a District Attorney may satisfy a lawyer, but it is meaningless for the public. It is like going down to a District Attorney's office to cop a second degree. In this case, it is worse, for it is the public that has been cheated and the public needs to know the facts.

The place for effective confession is in the pass which the people who were cheated read. It is they who have the right to know.

Sam Levenson reports that he dropped into a Chinese restaurant recently and was mildly astonished to note that the menu featured pizza pie. Summoning the manager, he demanded, "How come a chop suey joint serves an Italian dish like pizza?"

"We gotta," explained the manager. "The demand is terrific. You see, this is a Jewish neighborhood."

The Great Television Controversy

The television industry is a study in reflex. It has a great effect on the public but not nearly the effect that the public has on television. Since control of the airwaves represents a public trust, the television industry must account to the public for the administration of that trust.

The national uproar over quiz frauds apparently terrified network chiefs. Unfortunately, they reacted with more panic than logic. The idea, for example, that a profound moral crisis—with overtones of criminal negligence—can be solved by eliminating canned laughter is downright ridiculous. Ironically, the television industry, which has always been characterized by timidity and a great fear of "controversy," is currently involved in the hottest show.

The ruckus kicked up by the quiz hoax inspired a certain unanimity of opinion among columnists, editorialists and several national magazines. They agreed a major source of the trouble is the wild craving for higher ratings.

The destructive aspects of ratings, the fact that they are morally improper, scientifically inaccurate and commercially foolish—are hardly news to this reporter's readers and listeners. For the past few years we have debunked and debunked the ratings system. And today—the earnest vows of frightened network chiefs to reform are not accompanied by any desire to renounce ratings. They remain enslaved to the curious illusion that figures are mightier than facts.

The tragic absurdity of the power of ratings cannot be over-emphasized. Almost everything on television is determined by statistics which cannot be proven, by conclusions which are unreliable and by methods which are irresponsible. . . Low ratings deprive Berle, Gleason and Caesar of regular shows. The silly arithmetic resulted in the exile of such fine programs as "Omnibus" and "The Voice of Firestone." The phony quizzes, however, were kept alive and flourished as a consequence of high ratings.

Following an investigation of ratings systems by the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Senator Mike Monroney declared that "The mumbo-jumbo of ratings had forced good shows off the air because network presidents supplied how to this fictitious god that tells America what it may see and hear."

In rebuttal, the logic expounded by leaders of ratings services has a sort of Alice-in-Wonderland quality. Arthur G. Nielsen, the official nose-counter, has denied that programming policies are dictated by ratings. Nevertheless, he has conceded: "When a show gets a high rating other producers tend to copy it and that makes for a certain uniformity." Edward G. Hyman, the Trendex president, would have you believe: "show failure because people aren't watching, not because of the ratings themselves."

Surely he must know sponsors determine whether or not people are watching by the ratings.

Obviously, the heads of the ratings systems have sought to evade responsibility for the dismal consequences of their power. The idea that they merely compile statistics are not responsible for what goes on the air—is pure balderdash. And they must know it. . . Robert Sarnoff, the NBC chief, once accurately observed: "I've been forced to the reluctant conclusion that ratings are the stress on the Top Ten. Everyone talks about the probable error in ratings, but everyone ignores it. After the first few shows, places are decided by fractions of points, yet the Top Ten is almost an exclusive symbol of success. The fellow who called ratings 'murder by decimal points' made the perfect observation on this crazy business."

"Statistical proof" is an impressive but meaningless phrase. The truth is that the ratings services not only admit to probable error but accuse each other of being inaccurate. What is statistical proof? Last year Trendex gave a Perry Como show a rating of 30.3. The same program was rated by ARB as 45.8. The error represented a mere 12 million viewers.

Put Shoe On Other Foot

Dear Abby: We are two girls with a problem. There is this girl at school who has terrible reputation. And she won't leave us alone. Every-where we go she is right behind us. She hangs around our locker and tries to eat lunch with us.

It is causing us to lose all our friends because people are beginning to think we are just like her.

We don't want to hurt her feeling because she hasn't any friends. Please help us. We are all 14.

DESPERATE

Dear Desperate: Be kind to her. She needs it. Showing this unfortunate girl common courtesy when she latches onto you will not damage your reputations. It is not necessary to cultivate her friendship outside of school. But when she seeks you out, treat her as you would want to be treated if you were in her unhappy shoes.

Dear Abby: What is the matter with our young people today? I never forget the young people in our family on birthdays, confirmations and all special occasions. I don't expect them to reciprocate because many of them cannot afford to—but is it too much to expect a "thank you" note?

After a lapse of much time, I usually wind up writing to find out if they ever received my gift. Then I get a letter from their parents asking me to please forgive the young folks because they are "so busy." Would you please give me your opinion of this?

—DISGUSTED RELATIVE

Dear Disgusted: No duty is more urgent than that of returning thanks. Anyone who is old enough to print his name can sign a "thank you" note. If parents took the time and effort to teach their children this courtesy when they were very young, they would not have to apologize for them later.

Dear Abby: I am expecting my first baby within the next few weeks. This is my problem:

I want to name my baby (if it's a boy) "Burton Junior" after my husband. But my husband has been married before and he already has a son named "Burton Junior" after him.

Would it be all right to have another "Burton Junior"? I suppose this would cause a lot of confusion because the first Burton Junior lives in the next block with us, but you have no idea how much I want to name this baby after my husband.

EXPECTING

Dear Expecting: Name the baby something else. Your block is already "over Burton'd." Why complicate matters?

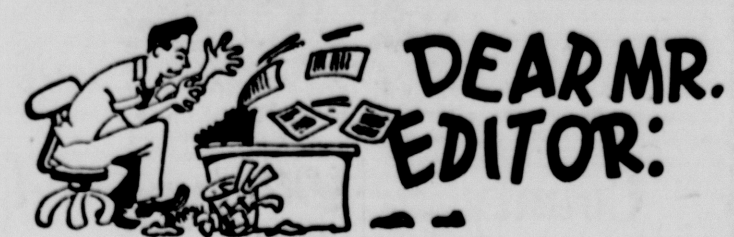

Dear Abby: A friend of mine is a member in good standing of a certain church which I do not choose to mention here. He is now quite elderly and is residing in a rest home.

I recently heard that he called the deacon of the church of which he has been a faithful member for many years, and asked the deacon if someone could come and help him to church. And the deacon was reported to have said "Old people like you should stay at home." What do you think about this?

UP IN ARMS

Dear Up: Simmer down! I wouldn't believe a tale like this unless I heard it from the deacon himself. I suggest that you give the deacon a chance either to affirm or deny the charge before you repeat it.

Confidential to Scotty: Let her go. She'll make a better memory than she would have made a wife.

Some Workers Poorly Paid

Dear Sir:

We read with interest your recent editorial entitled "Bill Goes Too Far." This bill concerns proposed pay increases for all state employees. In the nature of a cost-of-living increase. In the interest of those people concerned with the success of this proposed legislation, we would like to advance a few pertinent facts.

First, we have not had a wage increase since 1953. Up to 1956 a class of laborer at our institution received the shameful sum of $1998 yearly—before deductions, upon which to support a family. Governor Leader gave us a reclassification of positions with a new wage schedule encompassing all classifications in a ratio-formula raising this particular classification to $2791.

Since that time the cost-of-living has steadily mounted while we still live under the 1956 ratio between salaries and cost-of-living. Here is an example of a dormitory worker's wage scale: approximately $46 weekly before deductions.

Estimate an average of $40 weekly take-home pay. Estimate living costs thus: rent—$55 monthly, light and gas—$8.50 monthly, food for two—$15 weekly, gas and oil for transportation about $5 weekly, leaving $16.50 for clothes, car repairs and insurance, doctor or dentist, interest or payment purchases monthly. Can you tell us how this individual gets by?

Should there be more than two in the family, then two must work. With a 20 percent increase this worker would get an additional $480 yearly (approx.) before deductions (most industries pay health insurance costs on their employees; we must pay our own).

Also, it is a fact that 10 so-called "fringe benefits" granted State employees elsewhere. Pennsylvania receives none. Most states average four or more.

For the further edification of the good editor, only 10 percent of the state budget is used for salaries for some 60,000 state employees. The proposed raises will hardly catch up with prevailing costs. Every-one should realize that the fellow receiving a small salary must meet all the miscellany of tax increases the same as he who earns a larger salary.

Nobody hesitates to request donations from the small wage earner; he is expected to contribute the same as he who can afford to. Higher taxes support increases in wages for governmental municipal, industrial, professional, etc. workers; scarcely a day passes without some phase of tax increase or wage increase and we must help pay them all.

The industrial worker obtains raises periodically to keep pace with rising living costs which the little fellow must help pay. If salary increases had been granted us along with adjustments made in every other field, it would be unnecessary to request the 10 and 20 percent increases at this time.

If money can be found for other "necessities" that have overburdened the budget—then the welfare of the state employee is every bit as important and cannot longer be ignored.

In the final analysis it is the small salaried fellow who is the supplier and the buyer; his economic welfare is the answer to the welfare of the country itself. He is the supporter of government, industry, schools, et al; he is the force for which all exist and is the very warp and woof of society.

We wonder whether the people who object to his betterment really know how that side of society exists; whether they have ever known the meaning of insecurity.

Inside Washington

New Highway Markers Blossom Out

Washington — Not since 1921, when the now very familiar "U. S. Highway" system was instituted, has the American motorist faced such a need for a major shifting of gears in his own comprehension of road signs and route markers as today.

Motorists now must get the hang of using the new red, white and blue interstate highway markers which are blossoming over the landscape in ever-increasing numbers as about 12 per cent of the vast 41,000-mile interstate system is completed.

Gasoline companies which distribute most of the maps used by motorists are bemoaning the fact that yesterday's map can be as out-of-date as yesterday's newspaper. The well-posted motorist now must keep in mind three highway marker systems, and possibly a fourth, if his local county system is well-developed.

The state highway markers, usually consisting of black numbers on the white background of a sign shaped somewhat like the boundaries of the state, will continue to designate highways within the states.

Federal "U.S." markers will be continued, transcending state lines and often extending from borders to border, like the familiar U.S. 21, U.S. 31, U.S. 41, and so on, or from coast to coast as U.S. 30, U.S. 40, U.S. 50, and the like.

Where New Numbers Appear — The new interstate numbers now are seen mainly on tollways and turnpikes, and are generally consistent with the older U.S. series, since old numbers run generally north and south, while the even numbers are reserved for east-west routes.

It could happen that on short stretches of pavement, particularly near cities, a motorist could find four different markers on each post, but this does not mean that the systems are not co-ordinated.

William G. Eliot of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, Department of Agriculture, recently revealed to the annual Traffic Engineering conference at the University of Illinois that since 1956 the American Association of State Highway Officials has had a committee working with state and federal authorities.

In fact, the first details were drafted in 1939 for the vast system of interstate highways which will link 90 per cent of the cities in the nation of 50,000 population or more, without a stop-light or stop sign! It remained for the 1956 recession to spur launching of this greatest of all public works programs in the nation's history.

82 Million Drivers — Since autos first appeared, motor vehicles have increased to 68 million, with 82 million licensed drivers. There are three million miles of roads and 300,000 miles of streets. It is estimated that autos and trucks this year will travel 700 billion miles over these roads at a total cost of $75 billion.

Since recent studies show that fewer accidents occur on highways with prevailing speeds of 55 to 70 miles an hour, highway planners believe that the shocking toll of auto deaths, now totaling one and one-third millions lives since the invention of the automobile and the more than three million serious injuries, will be greatly curtailed.

'Equity Financing' Plans

By William A. Doyle
International Investment
Analyst

Q. I get confused when I read about "equity financing" and "secondary distributions." I think I have a fair idea about the first of these two things. But the second leaves me in the dark. Is there any real difference between the two?

A. Yes, indeed. There are a lot of differences. The big one is who gets the money.

When a company raises money by selling stock that is known as equity financing. The company gets the net proceeds from the sale of the stock and uses that money for corporate purposes.

After the stock is in the hands of the investing public it may be traded every business day. That trading may be done on one or more of the stock exchanges or in the over-the-counter market. The proceeds from the normal, steady sales go to the people who sell it.

Sooner or later, one stockholder or a group of stockholders may decide to sell a really big block of their shares. Selling a large amount of stock through regular trading channels might upset the market.

So, a secondary distribution might be made. The net proceeds go to the selling stockholders, not to the company.

But secondary distributions are not made through a stock exchange or normal over-the-counter methods. Stock offered through a secondary distribution is usually at a fixed price—normally a shade below the going market price.

If there is a great deal of stock involved, the offering will be registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

There are a lot of angles involved in a secondary. Not the least is that brokers will work hard to make them a success because the commission on a secondary is usually higher than commissions in regular trading.

Q. I bought some stock and had it registered in my name and my niece's name. My niece doesn't know about this. When the dividend checks come in, I sign them with my name and my niece's name and cash the checks. Is there anything wrong with this?

A. Come on, now. Whom are you trying to fool? Haven't you ever heard of forgery? You had better sit down with your niece and a lawyer to get things squared away.

Q. Some time ago, you wrote about the Federal gift tax and explained how much can be given away by a person each year and over a lifetime without any gift tax liability.

Please answer this. Is the person who receives a taxable gift supposed to report that gift in his tax return and pay taxes on it for the year in which he received the gift?

A. You have it all wrong. The recipient (the person who receives the gift) doesn't pay any gift tax that might be due. The gift tax is supposed to be paid by the donor.

And the donor is supposed to file a gift tax return.

RECORD OF ACHIEVEMENT

The Democratic Administration when they entered office in January 1956 found that the preceding Republican Administration had left the Treasury with insufficient money to pay all outstanding bills. The present Democratic Administration by practicing economy has changed that situation so that today all bills are being paid when currently due and there is a balance in the Treasury. This the Democratic Administration has done without increasing your County taxes.

The Democratic Administration when they entered office in January of 1956 also found that on December 5, 1955 the Republican Administration had paid an architect $5400.00 for the preparing of plans for an addition to the County Home that would have required the floating of a bond issue for one-half million dollars which would have placed the County in debt for that amount. The Democratic Administration felt that by utilizing all the available space in the County Home this expense would not be necessary for many years to come. This the Democratic Administration did, all without increase in your County taxes.

The Democratic Administration upon entering office found that the Republican Administration had made no effort to rebuild the eight County bridges that had been destroyed in the flood of August 1955. The Democratic Administration immediately prepared plans and have rebuilt all eight bridges without any increase in your County tax.

The Democratic Administration also in the past four years have rebuilt four County bridges that were obsolete and needed replacing. This they have done with no increase in County taxes.

The Democratic Administration initiated for the first time the distribution of surplus food to the needy people in Monroe County. This they have done with no increase in your County tax.

The Democratic Administration has actively participated in local municipal endeavors as well as local civic endeavors, such as the General Hospital, The Monroe County Library, The West End Fair, The Mt. Pocono Airport, The Monroe County Historical Society, The Child Health Program, The Child Guidance Program, Company "G", Company "F", Civil Defense, and the Flood Control Construction between the Boroughs of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg. This they have done with no increase in your County tax.

The Democratic Administration completed the work required by the States mandatory tax equalization program. This they did without increasing your County tax.

The Democratic Administration during the four years has continued all of the activities of your County Government rendering the type of service that is needed and required by the people of Monroe County. This they have done with no increase in your County tax.

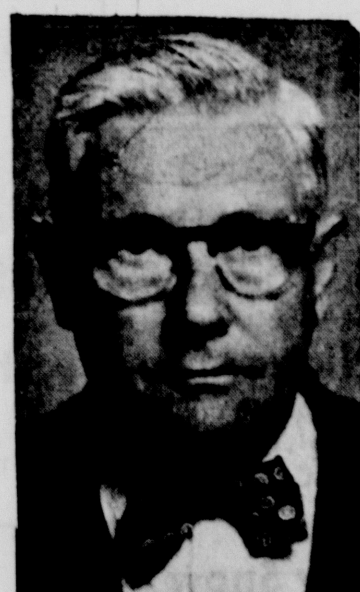

For a continuation of good government as well as economical government, on November 3, 1959 vote the Democratic ticket.

Community Chest Helps Support Salvation Army

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the 10th in a series of 12 articles covering each of the agencies benefiting from the annual Community Chest campaign now underway.)

"WITH HEART to God and hand to man." This is the philosophy which underlies every undertaking of the Salvation Army. In its inadequate quarters, The Citadel, on N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, Captain Charles Drummond organizes and oversees a remarkably vigorous and many-sided program which serves 580 children and adults every week.

Prominent among Salvation Army activities is Sunday School work, the number now, says Capt. Drummond, "nudging 200." Children are picked up by bus, taken to the Citadel and returned home after services.

The Girl Guard program involving girls from 11 to 18 has 40 teen-agers on the rolls. These uniformed girls meet once a week for their activities.

The "Sunbeams" take in girls six to 11 years of age and now number 30. A uniformed group, they met once a week.

Music plays an important part in the work of the Salvation Army, there being two bands rehearsing regularly. The senior band is composed of 18 boys and girls who hold weekly practice sessions, under Captain Drummond's direction.

These boys and girls receive instruction each week on their instruments, some coming for two or three such instructional sessions. There is no charge for lessons. A junior band has in it 15 boys and girls who also practice regularly and receive free instruction.

A significant activity among Salvation Army enterprises, says Captain Drummond, is the sending to camp of underprivileged children. This past summer 67 boys and girls attended the camp at Forks, Pennsylvania. Camping experience, which includes wilderness camping and Indian lore, is divided in the Summer over these phases or periods: a time for boys; a time for teen-age girls; a period for pre-teen girls; a period for co-ed groups.

The latter part of August sees the camp used strictly for welfare purposes, being run for those who are for some reason not capable of responding to the normal camp situation. Music instruction by professional instructors from the New York and Philadelphia areas is also given at the Forks camp.

A Boys Club is another highlight of the work done locally by the Salvation Army. Twenty-four boys each week in a workshop at the Citadel learn the operation of power tools as they learn woodworking. Athletics is also important in this Boys Club work. Captain Drummond says the athletic program is seriously hampered by lack of facilities.

Adult activities also take considerable time at The Citadel each week. Not so well known is the Christmas welfare program by means of which furniture of all sorts is supplied the needy.

Salvation Army also supplies emergency food orders, but never trespasses on the work being done by other agencies. Food orders are strictly on the emergency basis.

A program for transients also is a feature of Salvation Army work. A ticket for a meal is issued to those who apply. Shower facilities are provided and a free change of clothing. Captain Drummond also point out that thousands of garments are given out during the year, the needy being permitted to come twice weekly to select clothing.

Well known is the emergency and disaster work of Salvation Army. Captain Drummond says, "we go to every fire and assist with food and hot drinks as we can."

Number Of Marriages In County Declines To 319 From 324 Total Of Previous Year

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Whether the recession year of 1958 had anything to do with it or not — marriages in Monroe County last year went on the decline!

At least that would seem to be the case if the number of bride-and-groom ventures compiled by the State Department of Health for Monroe County can be accepted as a guide.

A statistical round-up for the year just completed by the department discloses that a total of 319 marriages took place in the county — which compares with 324 during the preceding year, and 296 the year before.

(Throughout Pennsylvania as a whole last year 67,203 marriages were recorded — down from the previous year's 75,208.)

Inevitably, the month of June proved to be the most popular month for Monroe County couples to embark upon the long voyage—with 42 rice-throwing escapades recorded during that month.

Next most popular months for weddings in the county were the months of August and November when in each month 32 couples took their vows.

January had the lowest number of weddings of any month of the entire year—eight.

A month-by-month, blow-by-blow breakdown of the number of weddings in the county during the past year (with figures for that month of the preceding year in parentheses) is as follows:

January, 8 (15); February, 17 (9); March, 21 (25); April, 25 (31); May, 29 (25); June, 42 (44); July, 31 (28); August, 32 (34); September, 28 (31); October, 23 (23); November, 32 (29); December, 27 (30).

GOOD COMMON SENSE!

Remember Eva Taylor at the polls for the post of Associate Judge. At the age of 62 she has had a wealth of experience in dealing with people. The warmth of a woman, the wisdom of a mother; the clear insight into the souls of people of all sorts; here is truly the person to fill the post of Associate Judge with the honesty and integrity required for such an august office. Who would be more able to lend an assist to the President Judge in the event a problem arises when the Judge needs the logical, sensible opinion of an outside thinker, than a woman with years of experience as a wife, mother and grandmother? Don't forget pointer No. 4—Row B. when you vote.

Residents Return From California

Mrs. Clyde White, of Bartonsville, and Mrs. Herbert Pooley, of Arlington Heights, have returned home from a visit with relatives in California. The trip was made by plane.

While in California, Mrs. Pooley saw several members of her family for the first time in many years. One of her brothers with whom she visited, she had not seen since 1906. Another brother she had last seen in 1916.

Mrs. Pooley is the former Ada Jane Dyer. She and her brothers and sisters were born in Tryro, Cornwall, England. Mrs. Pooley came to this country in 1904.

On Oct. 8, the Pooleys celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary.

They have one daughter, Mrs. White, and a son, Clarence. There are four grandchildren and several great-grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Pooley are most active in church and Sunday school work. They attend both the Presbyterian Fifth Street Mission and Arlington Heights Methodist Chapel and teach classes at each place. Medical Aux. Active At Convention
It was an exciting convention in Pittsburgh for the delegates from the Women's Aux. to the Medical Society of Monroe County when they saw their own member, Mrs. Walter H. Caulfield elected and installed as president-elect of the state medical auxiliary.

Mrs. Horace G. Butler, who with Mrs. Caulfield represented the local auxiliary, also reported that the report of Mrs. Herbert C. McClelland on her year of office was impressive showing the work accomplished by the 5,269 members in the state.

Mrs. Harry W. Buzzard was installed as the 36th state president and in her inaugural address urged each county unit to choose a field of service best suited to its own country's needs.

The Monroe County unit is very much interested in recruiting for health careers and in the GEMS program for the promotion of safety in the home.

Mrs. Butler also reported that the president of the Women's Aux. to the American Medical Assn., Mrs. Frank Gastineau of Indianapolis made a big impression on the delegates.

OFF THE RECORD

By Bob Clark
Sports Editor

The future of midget football in East Stroudsburg is at stake. The program, under the direct sponsorship of the Varsity "E" Club of East Stroudsburg, has run into financial problems which has forced the organization which has done so much for athletics in East Stroudsburg to ponder whether to drop the worthwhile project.

In the past the club was able to keep its head above water and back the program to the hilt. But other commitments have drained resources of the club's treasury that it is impossible to keep the league which provides good clean athletic activity for approximately 100 boys going.

For example this year the "E" underwrote the midget football program to the tune of $599.05. Insurance for the boys alone cost $300, while equipment replacements and repairs ran to $291.05. Other incidentals took up $18 more.

Thus far the income toward meeting this $399 expense is only $118.19. This was realized from two Tag Days and donations at the midget games.

On the basis of the above figures the "E" organization is $480.86 in arrears this season.

It is a shame that the boys of the "E" group are placed in this somewhat embarrassing position. It is too good of an organization to be let down by the general public.

For many years the "E" group didn't let the over-all athletic program in East Stroudsburg's school system down. In fact it was one of the guiding hands which provided many gifts to the high school and elementary school.

Through the years they also provided thousands of dollars which were used on necessary equipment and needs which otherwise would have gone by the boards without the E's efforts.

Now what can we do to aid this group and also make sure the midget football program continues for years to come in East Stroudsburg? Well on Nov. 14 a "put over the top" Tag Day will be held in an attempt to provide at least $481 to make up the midget football program deficit.

Like "E" president John Kirk said the other day, "As every one knows, in order to furnish satisfactory facilities for an operation of this nature, we not only must find unselfish personnel to handle the program but also must furnish topflight equipment to afford our young participants the best protection available."

As a reminder Kirk pointed out to us, "It costs plenty of money to keep 100 lads playing in this program."

The "E" group hasn't purchased any new uniforms for any of the four teams involved in the midget grid loop. However, next year this step in all probability will have to be taken, Kirk revealed.

Kirk and his aides don't want to put the program on the shelf. But they will have to by the Nov. 14 tag day isn't a success.

We hope this project gains the full support of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Public. So much in fact that there never will be any doubt again that a midget football program in East Stroudsburg is in financial jeopardy.

Folks keep the Nov. 14 date on your mind constantly or better yet if you happen to run into an "E" member between now and the 14th give him a hand with some cash in it.

Any little assistance will go a long way to make big men out of East Stroudsburg Midget Football League players.

Huskies Ready Ground Game For Invasion Of Warriors

BLOOMSBURG—"We haven't been run over; our opponents have hurt us most with an effective passing attack," said Coach Walt Blair today while commenting on preparations for the big Homecoming Day football game to be played at Bloomsburg's Mt. Olympus Stadium on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. Bloomsburg's Huskies will host a strong Warrior squad from East Stroudsburg State Teachers College in a conference title which is crucial to each team. The Warriors are currently holding down fifth place while the Huskies are tied for tenth.

In spite of two losses (to Shippensburg and Millersville by six points each), the Huskies have piled up 783 yards rushing and limited their opponents to 668. These statistics include victories over King's College (6-0) and Mansfield S.T.C. (12-6) and a 6-6 tie with Cortland.

Emphasis Running "We're continuing the emphasis on our running attack but we want to connect on more passes in situations which can either set up or result in a score. We've had Dick Rohrer, Ken Robbins, and Jim Conrad working like horses all week—tossing passes to ends Wayne Miller, Stan Elinsky, Ed Galitsky, Stan Hugo, and Ron Wetzel in addition to halfback Joe Rishfokski," said Blair. Hugo, a tall, speedy junior from Athens, Pa., leads the squad in passing receiving with nine catches and a net gain of 115 yards. Rishfokski ranks second with 7 catches and 78 yards gained.

The Husky squad has had its share of gruelling scrimmages sessions this week, work on both passing and pass defenses. In order to gain a victory over the Warriors on Saturday, the Huskies must be able to break through a strong defensive unit which will have plenty of beef and experience to throw at Bloomsburg's corps of pigskin carriers.

One of the bright spots in the picture features the return of veteran guard Bob Warren, a junior from Mechanicsburg, who has been playing varsity ball since his Freshman year. A tough, aggressive player and a spark plug on the line, Warren has been benched during the entire season with a foot injury sustained before school began in September. He saw limited duty last week at Millersville, but should be ready to play the entire game against East Stroudsburg.

The Warriors are a big, well-coached highly competitive squad, similar in many respects to Millersville's team. They generally operate from winged and split T formations.

A capacity crowd of students and alumni are expected to be on hand for the game.

Schoolboys Set To Put On Grid Show

By FRED WALTERS
HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania high schools will put on a four-ring show for football fans this weekend.

Four games pairing eight of the top teams in the state head one of the best programs of the 1959 season.

Six of the teams are among the 48 high schools still unbeaten as the gridiron campaign approaches the finish.

Here's the rundown: Altoona at Johnstown—Both are unbeaten. Johnstown is the defending WPIAL-AA champion and one of four teams still in contention for the 1959 title. Altoona, although a conference member, does not play enough games to be eligible. Altoona is the choice here in the traditional battle.

Easton at Central Dauphin—A top intersectional clash matching the Harrisburg area's best against the Lehigh Valley's best. Easton has lost only to a Baltimore prep school. Unbeaten Central Dauphin has quarterback Don Caum and he should make the difference.

Neshaminy at Morrisville—This will be for the Lower Bucks Conference championship. Neshaminy's only loss was to Easton; Morrisville is unbeaten. Neshaminy looks like one of the best in the southeast and should drop Morrisville from the unbeaten list.

Kingston at Wilkes-Barre—Meyers—A battle of unbeateners for the Wyoming Valley Conference lead. Kingston looks like the better team.

In other top games: Mahanoy Area at Shamokin—Mahanoy, a new school, finally seems to be living up to pre-season expectations. The Greyhounds, on the other hand, have hit the skids the past two weeks.

Collegeville at Wyomissing—Two strong, unbeaten little schools battling for the Intercity (South-east) Championship. Wyomissing has been much more impressive.

Franklin at Titusville—This is the climax of Titusville's dark horse bid for the Section II title. But Franklin ought to win this final game of the campaign and clinch the championship.

Smethport at St. Mary's—Smethport is unbeaten after seven games. The Flying Dutchmen are no longer the team that won 32 straight before losing earlier this season. Smethport to mae St. Mary's No. 8.

In other games: East — Norristown over lower Merion, Havertown over Springfield, Ridley Town over Plymouth.

Whitman, Lansdowne-Aldan over Radnor, Media over Nether Providence, Conestoga over Pottstown, Phoenixville over Hazleton, Hellertown over East Stroudsburg, Nazareth over Bangor, Old Forge over Swoyersville, Scranton Central over Plymouth, Kingston Catholic over Sayre, Lancaster over Reading.

Mid-State — West Scranton over Coal Twp., Mount Carmel over Ashland, Minersville over St. Clair, Berwick over Pottsville, Lebanon over Williamsport, Bellefonte over Clearfield, Lewisport over Chief Logan, Lock Haven over Danville.

Army Aims For AF

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer
WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP)—Army and the Air Force football teams meet Saturday for the first time, but a visit to the Military Academy here would make you believe they have been mortal enemies since the year 1.

The Army Cadets, both players and non-players, are giving the coming game the same serious thought and the secret drills reserved in the past only for such venerable foes as Navy and Notre Dame.

Don Usry, an end, put it this way: "We have plenty at stake and so do they. After this game they'll be comparing the best team, the best service and even the best academics. We don't intend to lose our prestige and if we should, we'd never live it down through our military careers."

Capt. Bill Carpenter, Army's lonely end, had this to say: "This is a big game for us—our biggest so far, and just as big as the Navy game. We're excited and want to win this as badly as we do the Navy game, particularly since this is the only chance all of us will ever have to play them again."

At Stadium Saturday's big game will be in New York's vast Yankee Stadium. A giant pep rally was planned Friday night in the Mess Hall—generally reserved for pre-Navy or Notre Dame game demonstrations.

Army will be seeking its fourth victory in six games.

The game will be televised on an eastern regional hookup by NBC.

Southern Conference Title Between The Citadel, VMI

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
HANG ONTO your Confederate money, boys. The South's two military colleges — the Citadel and VMI — are heading toward a knockout battle for the Southern Conference football title. This weekend could be decisive.

The Virginia Keydets start it off Friday night when they play George Washington on the Colonial's field. VMI has a 2-6-1 conference record while George Washington has lost three in the league.

The Citadel, South Carolina's military college, leads the conference with a 3-0 record and plays weak William and Mary Saturday. The two top contenders meet Nov. 14 after nonconference games next week.

Big Game A night game in the South also is the highlight of the Saturday program. That's the meeting at Baton Rouge, La., between Louisiana State and Mississippi, currently ranked No. 1 and No. 3 nationally in the Associated Press poll. The winner is figured as a cinch for the Southeastern title and the Sugar Bowl bid.

Another big one Saturday involves the first meeting between Army and the newest service academy, the Air Force. This clash in New York has taken on some of the flavor of the traditional Army-Navy donnybrooks.

Northwestern, No. 2 in the rankings, seeks to protect its Big Ten lead against Indiana; Texas (No. 4) plays Southern Methodist; Syracuse (5) meets Pittsburgh; Southern California (6) plays California; Penn State (7) visits West Virginia; Auburn (8) enters Florida; Georgia Tech (9) entertains Duke and Wisconsin (10) plays Michigan.

Other important Saturday games include: EAST — Dartmouth-Yale, Harvard-Pennsylvania, Brown-Princeton, Columbia-Cornell.

SOUTH — Florida State-Georgia, Mississippi State-Alabama, Tennessee-North Carolina, Maryland-South Carolina, Wyoming-North Carolina State.

IRISH-NAVY — Navy - Notre Dame, Michigan State-Ohio State, Purdue-Illinois, Vanderbilt-Minnesota, Kansas State-Iowa, Oklahoma-Nebraska, Iowa State-Kansas, Missouri-Colorado.

SOUTHWEST — Texas A&M-Arkansas, Texas Christian-Baylor (night), Clemson - rice (night), Houston-Tulsa.

FAR WEST — Washington - UCLA, San Jose-Stanford, Washington State-Oregon State, Oregon-Idaho, Colorado State-Utah, Montana, Denver-New Mexico, Arizona-Utah, New Mexico State-Arizona State (night).

Two Davises Spell Out Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—When you mention Davises of Syracuse be specific. They have two. Both are more important cogs in the unbeaten Orange football machine.

Roger Davis is a 6-3, 228-pound senior from Solon, Ohio, where he played his schoolboy football.

At Syracuse he is the short side guard who has discouraged enemy teams from trying his side of the line. Sometimes he is a line-bucker on defense. Other times he is a tackle. A versatile man is Roger who came to college as an end.

Ernie Davis is a 19-year-old sophomore halfback. In the first five games he carried the ball 49 times and gained 371 yards, an average of 7.6 yards for each carry. He comes from Elmira, N. Y.

Even cautious Ben Schwartz, wilder, his coach, admits he is coming along fine.

Syracuse football buffs rave about Ernie's blocking. And they tell how he tries to lure an enemy pass into his territory and then cut over at the last second to knock it down.

Roger Davis is exceptionally mobile for a big man. He is majoring in physical education with plans for a career as a coach and teacher.

Alston Inks 1-Yar Pact

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Manager Walter Alston has signed a new one-year contract to pilot the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers and he gets a raise in pay.

General Manager E. J. (Buzze) Bavasi announced the signing Thursday after a talk with Alston at his home in Dartmouth, Ohio.

The Dodgers did not divulge money but it is believed Alston's salary now approaches $40,000 a year.

"Alston has accepted terms for a one year contract and he was awarded a nice raise," Bavasi said.

Alston was voted "manager of the year" for ushering the Dodgers to the National League pennant in a playoff with Milwaukee and then winning the series in six games against the Chicago White Sox. The Dodgers finished a dismal seventh in 1958.

Falcons Set
For Contest
With Cadets
COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The Air Force Falcons splashed through rain and snow
Thursday in the final home workout for their first football game with Army Saturday.

But the miserable weather failed to dampen the spirits of the 34 players, eyeing the tilt in New York City's huge, Yankee Stadium.

Except for right end Sam Har-dage, the traveling team was reported in top physical condition.
Hardage suffered a deep gash in the calf of his left leg against UCLA last Friday.

Hardage, rated one of the top defensive players, practiced in pads for the first time Wednesday.

"You can bet I'm going to be ready for those whooping - whopboys," he said Thursday.

"I don't think they can keep Sam out of the game," said Coach Ben Martin. "He's that kind of a boy, 100 per cent game."

The 400 cadets going to the Army game were scheduled to start leaving Colorado Springs by chartered commercial airlines late
Friday night and reach New York
City Saturday morning.

Part of the Air Force proceeds from the game are being used to finance the air-lift.

Upholds School
Hit By NCAA
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Despite a two-year probation penalty, Athletic Director Clyde Smith believes Arizona State University's athletic program was proved
"sound, honest and healthy" by a National Collegiate Athletic Assn.
investigation.

Smith said Thursday violations of financial aid and recruiting rules were a result of misunderstandings.

The university plans no formal protest of the penalty, he said, because "there has never been,
as far as I know, a change made in a penalty after it was assessed."

But Smith said he did plan to protest some investigative procedures.

Stroudsburg newest Dodge dealer welcomes you to a special showing today and tomorrow!

We're proud to announce our appointment as the new factory authorized dealer in this locality for Dodge and the new Dodge Dart, the complete new line of economy cars in the low-price field.

Dodge Dart station wagons are at home in any setting. Designed for modern living, they combine roomy passenger comfort with large cargo compartment and advanced styling.

The low, graceful silhouette of the 1960 Dodge is accented by small canted fins flaring naturally from the new jet-tube rear fenders. This Matador features a new high-fashion rear window which curves into the roof.

It's staffed by factory trained mechanics who are ably qualified to service not only Chrysler Corporation cars, but all makes.

You're cordially invited to visit our showrooms and see the brilliant array of new 1960 models on display.
